[the best] recommendation letter	Start early Begin thinking about who can best represent you months ahead of the application deadline. Put together a list of 4-6 options, and approach them at least one month in advance to complete their letter. You're more likely to receive a thoughtful, completed recommendation.
Be careful Read each application carefully, and note all letter requirements. Should they be able to speak to your academic skills? Leadership qualities? Or something else? Narrow down your options, and select a teacher, coach, employer, or mentor who meets this requirement.	Refresh their memory Chances are your recommender has worked with other students before and after you. Share about yourself: your current academic interests, hobbies, and what you've learned from them. It doesn't hurt to send them a paper or project you're proud of, either!
